

And So I Watch You From Afar released The Endless Shimmering on the 20 October 2017 on Los Angeles based record label Sargent House home of fellow noiseniks Deafheaven, Chelsea Wolfe and Russian Circles. The band left home to spend the Autumn and Winter in Europe, UK and Ireland playing their biggest headline tour to date drenching sold out audiences with their most thunderous collection of songs to date. After making hints towards more material surfacing in 2019 and a remix album nearing completion the band made some select appearances this summer, headlining festivals in Germany, Ireland and UK, closing the opening night of the revered Arctangent Festival alongside Shellac and Glassjaw. Autumn saw ASIWFYA departing to Asia before embarking on their first ever Australian tour in October 2018.
